At 8 oclock this morning just as Joseph Doblash, his father, was getting out of bed, the outer door opened, and in marched Tony and his friend Joe.

They wore stern faces, and a dangerous light shone in their eyes. Tony walked straight up to the old man and said.

"Now, you just want to take back all you said about me learning a trade. "I ain't goin' to learn none, see? "An'. If you don't simmer down and do the square thing, we'll shoot the top of your head off, an' pump mother full of lead, too."
